Paloma Luisa Marquez Hermosa, a striking Colombian woman in her forties, is at the peak of her career. The head of a discreet and highly efficient criminal organization, she brings cocaine into Montreal and launders the proceeds. Based on a true story, she is the infamous Godmother of the Cali Cartel. Following her heart, she will do anything to give her family everything she wants for them.

But things get complicated when she is targeted by police investigator, Paul Généreux, who is determined to topple the cartel. However, what seems like a fairly straightforward investigation uncovers a more extensive corruption that implicates high-ranking police officers. As Paul tackles unexpected difficulties from all directions, this drama portrays all the shades of morality in a moving and tense mini-series.
