After falling from the roof of her loft in the skateboard center owned by her family, Daphne has been in a coma for the past three months. While her mother and best friend wait patiently for her to wake up, her brother shocks the family with his suggestion to switch off her life support system. But just as the family is convinced, Daphne opens her eyes and must face her new reality – her fall has been classified as an attempted suicide.

Despite her partial memory loss, Daphne refuses to believe that she tried to take her own life and tries to piece together what really happened. With only her best friend sharing her doubts, Daphne realizes that she can trust no one, not even her closest family. Unable to remember the events before she fell, everyone is a suspect – why is her sister avoiding being alone with her at all costs? What is her boyfriend hiding? And what was in the mysterious document stolen from her house?

While reconstructing the puzzle she'll discover secrets, lies and the unspeakable truth locked deep in her memory. As every new piece of the puzzle is revealed, we discover another layer of the story, in an intense, unpredictable and edge-of-your-seat psychological thriller.
